

Silvio's G20

photo album

Move over Prince Philip, Silvio Berlusconi is the new king of the gaffe. The brash Italian PM even managed to upset the Queen during his trip to London. This is how he may remember his visit...

This is me with my new amico, Meesta Obama. I wanted a picture with just me and il presidente but the Russian guy got in da way. Maybe I squeeze my new friend too tight, though, cos in this next photo he looka like he wanna get away from me....

Now, I am confused - this is meant to be an official photo from the summit but I am nowhere to be seen. Maybe I already left for Italia. Maybe Meesta Obama laugh at me too much. He mucha different to Meesta Bush - everybody used to laugh at him. I don't know why but now everybody laugha at me.

Hehe! Meesta Brown is trying to smile now, but he can'ta do it! He looka like he's gotta ravioli stuck between his teeth. Maybe he knows I am looking at him outta corner of my eye. He tell me he want to save da world but I tell him he gotta smile first.

Meesta Obama has a great smile. I made sure my amico wasa beside me in this photo. But the Queen is not my friend. I shouted 'Meesta Obama' too loud for her and she gave me a look to keel.

Pictures: EPA/AFP/Getty/Reuters/PA

We beat the Post Office exchange rates or we'll double the difference*
0% commission too

Over 800 stores nationwide
 thomascook.com

Get more money for your money

Thomas Cook

Foreign Exchange

*Offer applies to transactions at Thomas Cook and Going Places high street travel stores only and to rates at the Post Office high street outlets for an equivalent Sterling value transaction on the same day. "Difference" is the difference in the Sterling cost of the same amount of foreign currency. Offer applies to new transactions only and can be withdrawn without notice.